

Two New Member Schools in the Archdiocese of San Francisco

St. Philip & St. Dunstan Catholic Schools

We begin this school year with two new network schools in the Archdiocese of San Francisco, St. Philip School in San Francisco, and St. Dunstan Catholic School in Millbrae. Both of these new schools bring a rich heritage of successful Catholic education in an urban and suburban setting.

St. Philip School, rooted in Catholic faith and values, with its faculty, staff and parents, collaborating to create an inclusive and nurturing learning environment. St. Philip School attends to the development of the whole child, through the pursuit of academic excellence and personal enrichment. Students are educated for lives of hope, joy, meaning and purpose to serve the common good.

St. Dunstan Catholic School encourages students to have a strong Catholic identity as they strive to be creative leaders, honorable and responsible students, respectful and helpful classmates, intellectually engaged scholars, and trustworthy citizens. In partnership with parents, the school provide a student-centered program of faith formation and academic achievement.

The CSJ Educational Network Programs: Ministerial Formation Program for Educators

Part 1 of a three-part series

The CSJ Ministerial Formation Program for Educators fosters a dynamic sense of purpose and dignity in those who serve to bring the teaching ministry of Jesus into the future. Modeled on an adult multi-faceted process, this program provides educators with content, practical classroom application and community-building in the tradition, vision, and mission of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange. This unique opportunity offers participants an enhanced understanding of Catholic teachings, Gospel values, Church ministry and deepens life-long learning and personal formation as a Catholic school educator.
